

Alumapalooza 10 | First time you came for the Tech, You came BACK for the Friends you Made.

Every May in Jackson Center Ohio Airstream owners flock back to the mother ship, as the Airstream Factory plays host to Alumapalooza. If it is your first Alumapalooza, you came to learn more about that shiny silver trailer you proudly tow behind your vehicle.

Like Frank and Sandy who came to their first Alumapalooza after we told them about the great time we had last year when we meet them at a campground in Michigan. Or Rex and Karen who came to their first Alumapalooza after buying their first Airstream this year.

But many of us came back again for the people we meet. Every where you go during Alumapalooza "hellos" are exchanged and conversations are struck up over common interests in this RV lifestyle we all share. New friendships are made, old friendships are renewed and plans are made to meet up again.

We got to meet Bri and TJ a youngish (their words) full-time RV couple who have been traveling the US in their Airstream for the past couple years documenting their adventures on their YouTube channel, "Embracing Detours." We shared a dinner with Chuck and Molly who are enjoying their retirement as full-time Airstreamers.

We met "two girls in a trailer," Kim Hays and her dog Meri, who runs a pop-up-shop, "The Kabine," out of her vintage airstream selling items to help us connect to our friends using low tech custom postcards, pencils, stamps and stationery.

We caught up with Haydocy Airstream's Eric Davis, who we bought our Airstream from. He brought a couple new trailers for all to walk through and dream about.

There are tech seminars scheduled during the day to learn all about every aspect of your Airstream trailer. Meetings with the Airstream executives to hear about the future of the Airstream and the new factory rising from the ground just down the road. It also is a great time to make that appointment with Airstream Service to get those little items fixed. Be sure to book way ahead, appointments fill up fast.

Alumapalooza is held every year the week after Memorial Day from Tuesday to Sunday. Early arrival is available if you are interested in spending your holiday weekend in Jackson Center with other Airstreamers. Use the link below to reserve your place for Alumapalooza 11 in May 26, 2020
